1. STEM ACTION ITEM RECOMMENDATIONS

All recommendations were created based on the articles in the subsection ‘Taking Action’ in Section 3, STEM-Focused Resources.

HOW CAN I PROMOTE an INCLUSIVE ENVIRONMENT?

- Make extra effort to invite Black researchers to academic events, extracurricular events, conferences, office hours, and research opportunities.
- Seek out images, practices, and language associated with your research area that may exclude or cause harm to Black researchers, and how they can be dismantled.

HOW CAN I LEAD RESEARCH EFFORTS THAT UPLIFT BLACK LIVES?

- Disseminate scientific findings to dispel myths that fuel racism. Our resources provide a starting point to learn about these findings.
- Be intentional about inclusion, as color-blind studies can cause exclusion and invisibility. Ensure research includes disaggregation of data by race.
- Advocate for institutional and national biorepositories that reflect diversity of the population.
- Advocate for reconciliation commissions in research institutions such as NIH to investigate why funding has been denied to Black researchers.

HOW CAN I GET INVOLVED in LOCAL POLITICS?

- Vote! Learn about policies that impact Black lives and engage people you know in conversation that values Black lives.
- Local politics can also mean institutional politics. Join committees at your university, or advocate for creation of positions on committees. These positions are a great opportunity to amplify Black voices in decision making.
- Contribute your expertise/skills to grassroots organizations and Black folks.

WHAT CAN I DO as a STUDENT?

- Examine and take part in your institution’s admissions and/or hiring process if feasible (for example, some universities allow students to serve on some hiring committees).
- Use your platform to support funding and policy changes that value Black lives and ease burdens perpetuating systemic inequity. Some examples of research programs supporting minority researchers include DHHS supplements, NIH MARC, and NSF REU.
WHAT CAN I DO as a FACULTY MEMBER?

- In teaching, develop course materials that center Black authors and include the lived experiences of Black people.
- In mentorship, seek out opportunities to ensure Black students have early exposure to research and professional development.
- Advocate for consistent and fair practices in tenure evaluation, and review processes for grants and manuscripts.

We as a GROUP of GOLDWATER SCHOLARS are COMMITTED TO:

- Creating mentorship programs to actively recruit and support Black researchers in applying for prestigious scholarships, including the Barry Goldwater Scholarship
- Reaching out to, encouraging, and offering advice to students from Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) to apply to national scholarship competitions, including but not limited to the Barry Goldwater Scholarship
- Actively identifying Black authors on LinkedIn, Google Scholar, ResearchGate, and Academia.edu, and highlighting their work in journal clubs, literature reviews, and academic conversations
- Inviting Black speakers to—and fairly compensating them for—conferences as well as campus and company speaking engagements
- Nominating Black individuals for STEM excellence awards beyond channels specifically designed for diversity
- Purposely joining labs, companies, and organizations with leaders who actively recruit equally representative workforces
- Using leadership platforms within academia, industry, and beyond to amplify Black voices and work
- Refusing racist applications of work and research
- Writing and executing impact statements for research grants (including those funded by the NSF and NIH) that effectively center on Black students and other students of color
- Prioritizing the impacts of research by working to thoroughly engage affected communities at every stage of the scientific process, including in field work and psychology research
- Joining boards of organizations to push forward diversity policies
- Seeking out STEM communication platforms (e.g., STEM Twitter) that promote current and historically overlooked Black scientists
2. EXISTING RESOURCE LISTS & GUIDES

GENERAL RESOURCE LISTS
- A Guide to Allyship (Black Lives Matter)
- A Guide to Anti-Racism
- Black Lives Matter | Resources (Everlane; covers general resources for involvement, education, and support of Black-owned businesses)

EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES
- Translating awareness letters & readings to multiple languages (Open Letter Project)
- Glossary for Understanding the Dismantling Structural Racism/Promoting Racial Equity Analysis (The Aspen Institute)
- Talking About Race Web Portal (National Museum of African American History and Culture)
- Teaching Difference, Power and Discrimination (Oregon State University)
- Teaching Tolerance Guide for K-12 (Southern Poverty Law Center)
- What Is White Privilege, Really? (Teaching Tolerance)
- US Police Killings: What the data tells us (Medium)

MEDIA & BOOK LISTS
- Anti-racism books, articles, TV, videos, movies, etc for white people (Forbes)
- Books, films, social media accounts (Fashion)
- 10 essential anti racist podcasts (Elle)
- 21 racism in America podcasts (Bello Collective)
- Anti-racism books for all POC
- Essential anti-racism books (Buzzfeed)
- Anti-racism books are selling out, read these (Time)

PROTEST, RIOT, & ALLYSHIP ACTION
- Tips for Protesting during COVID
- Financial Allyship Breakdown
- Ways to Help (Black Lives Matter)
- Action Support Resource List 1
- Action Support Resource List 2
- Action Support Resource List 3

COMMUNITIES for BLACK STEM RESEARCHERS
• Blacks in Technology: Stomping the Divide; Global platform for black men and women in technology.
• Black is Tech Conference; 2-day experience bringing together black and minority techies.

Association of Black Women Physicians “is an organized network of Black women physicians committed to the improvement of public health and welfare, through the advancement of knowledge concerning women and the community health.” The organization “empowers to lead in health and wellness” and “creates and supports numerous community health and wellness events.”

Black Women in Science and Engineering is a networking and professional development group for Black women who hold degrees in STEM, to facilitate connections and shared experiences among members.

Development Fund for Black Students in Science and Technology is an endowment fund for African-American students enrolled in scientific or technical fields at Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs).

National Association for the Professional Advancement of Black Chemists and Chemical Engineers is an organization “dedicated to assisting black and other minority students and professionals in fully realizing their potential in academic, professional, and entrepreneurial pursuits in chemistry, chemical engineering, and allied fields.”

National Association of Black Geoscientists is a professional organization that hosts a national conference for minority professionals to “connect, communicate, and network with other minority professionals in the geosciences.”

National Black Nurses Association “serves as the professional voice for over 200,000 African American registered nurses, licensed vocational/practical nurses, nursing students and retired nurses from the USA, Eastern Caribbean and Africa.” It has 115 chapters that “provide countless hours of community-based health care services.”

National Conference of Black Political Scientists is an annual political science conference “organized to study, enhance, and promote the political aspirations of people of African descent in the United States and throughout the world.”

National Medical Association “is the collective voice of African American physicians and the leading force for parity and justice in medicine and the elimination of disparities in health.”

National Society of Black Engineers is a professional organization made “to increase the number of culturally responsible Black Engineers who excel academically, succeed professionally and positively impact the community.”
• National Society of Black Physicists “donations will be used to support students (K-12, undergraduate and graduate students) majoring or interested in physics participate in physics and STEM programs.”

• Society of Black American Surgeons is an organization that strives to “improve health, advance science, and foster careers of African American and other underrepresented minority surgeons.”

• STEM is the new BLACK is an organization to introduce and expose minority students from underrepresented communities to STEM opportunities and careers. “Reshaping the culture with intelligence and creativity.”

• Women of Color Advancing Peace and Security is a professional network made “to advance the leadership and professional development of women in color in the fields of international peace, security, and conflict transformation.”

• Women of Color Research Network is an NIH-organized group for researchers “created to provide women of color and supporters of their advancement in the biomedical sciences information about the NIH grants process, advice on career development, and a venue or forum for networking and sharing information.”

• BlackAFinSTEM (@BlackAFinSTEM); Twitter community
